COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

SATURDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 10.

Consols in London yesterday were ¼ lower at 99¾, but otherwise indications seem in favour of returning ease in Money, 4 per cent Rupee Paper being 1 higher at 82¾, 4½ per cent 3 higher at 90¾. The Indian Sterling Loan is unaltered at 102, French Rentes at 116¾.

In the London Produce markets, Coffee and Cocoanut-oil are unaltered. Linseed is quite and partially 6d. per quarter lower. Rapeseed is unchanged. Wheat, Reuter says, is firm, but at the same time the Liverpool quotations for Bombay qualities are 3d. per cental lower.

The Manchester Piece-goods market is given as firm but little doing, prices being the same as on Tuesday last, except 40s. Mule Twist which is 1d. per lb. higher.

Cotton in Liverpool yesterday was strong for Americans with a further advance of 1-16d. on the spot and 1-16d. to 3-32d. per lb. to arrive, but for Surats only firm at unchanged prices, except for a rise of 1-16d. in Good Oomra. The day's sales reached 15,000 bales, of which, however, Surats were only 800. To-day's market has again been firm both for Americans and Surats, the sales being estimated at 10,000 bales, of which 1,000 are put down to Surats. Spot prices are unaltered throughout, but American deliveries in Liverpool are partially 1-32d. down. In New York yesterday, ready Mid-Uplands were ¼ cent. higher at 12⅞, December shipment 37 points higher at 12·13. To-day's quotations show a decline of 1-16 in ready, but an advance of 1 points in December shipment.

The result of the movements in the value of Cotton during the week, has been an advance of ¼d. per lb. in Americans, as against only a partial improvement of 1-16d. in Surats, marking very distinctly that the entire working of the market has been an organised speculation for a September corner in tenderable American. Spinners have evidently taken alarm at the extraordinary success which has followed the operations of the clique so far, Reuter reporting that "an immense meeting of Cotton Spinners has been held at Manchester, which strongly denounced the Cotton ring at Liverpool, and resolved to organize the stoppage of Mills for one week, and meanwhile to abstain from purchasing Cotton in Liverpool." So far as it goes this counter-movement is legitimate enough, and if pretty unanimously adhered to will not be without effect. We fear, however, that producers are scarcely in a position to suspend operations to such an extent as to overpower the strong organisation in Liverpool. There can be no doubt that they are largely under contract for both goods and yarns, for September delivery onwards, which will prevent more than a partial stoppage of the Mills, and the slight reduction in the off-take of ready Cotton will scarcely be sufficient to prevent the corner being effected. As a matter of fact the ready legitimate business is only one, and by no means the most important element in the position. The corner has been brought about by the purchase of an enormous number of contracts for September delivery, against which only a comparatively insignificant quantity of real Cotton is available for tender, and the speculators have no doubt made arrangements to pay for and withdraw from the market almost every bale as it is tendered. The great question is whether they can finance the quantity they will be compelled to take up over the 30th instant. If not, the speculators must collapse from the moment they reach the end of their resources, and in any case the collapse must come with the necessary unloading which must ensue after the end of the month.

We subjoin our usual weekly comparison of the statistical position of the staple with the two previous years.

The visible supply of Cotton for all Europe on the 9th instant gives the following comparisons :—

	1881.	1880.	1879.
Total supply of all kinds..	1,020,000	1,219,100	918,830
" " " Surats..	387,000	581,740	422,400

For the U. K. only the figures are :—

EXCHANGE.—With Bar Silver in London unaltered and nothing in the nature of business here to induce any special movement, the market to-day has been steady at yesterday's top quotations, say :—

Bank Bills on demand	..Rs. 7 2-32	per rupee.
Do. telegraphic	..Rs. 7 3-32	"
Do. 4 months sight..	..Rs. 7 1-32	"
Credits, 3 " " ..	..Rs. 8 5d.	"
Documents, 3 " " ..	..Rs. 8 5-32d.	"
Francs 3 " " ..	..12 12½	"

GOVERNMENT PAPER to-day has been firmer again, and with a fair enquiry Fours have advanced to Rs. 100¾, Fours-and-a-half to Rs. 109¾ to 2. This improvement is mainly due to the advance advised from London, but anything like an important rise is checked by the firm appearance of our Money market.

SHARES are very quiet, and, as a general rule, values are unchanged, but any alterations are mostly in buyers favour. Bank of Bombays have receded to Rs. 731. In Press Companies there is no change. Port Canning Land Shares are Rs. 2½ higher at Rs. 227½. Spinning and Weaving Mill Companies are unaltered with perhaps two or three exceptions, where a decline of Rs. 5 to Rs. 10 is noted.

COTTON to-day has been firm, and sellers are asking fully previous rates, but for export we have not heard of any business of importance.

SEEDS and WHEAT are practically unaltered.

FREIGHTS are firm at 1/3, 3d. for Wheat, and 36s. 3d. for measurement for Liverpool. Some enquiry exists for Venice and Trieste October shipment at 42s. 6d. As regards chartering the position is unaltered.

PIECE-GOODS show no movement worthy of note. The spot enquiry has not improved, and prices are the same.

COALS are steady at unaltered values.

The Bombay Gazette

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1881.

AFTER smouldering for weeks and months, the situation in Egypt has at last disclosed itself with terrible distinctness. In the afternoon of the 9th instant the Khedive's palace was surrounded by 4,000 Egyptian troops, who demanded the dismissal of the sovereign's present ministry. To this, doubtless their chief demand, they added the expression of their burning desire for a "constitution" and an increase of their own numbers. The Khedive was fain to summon the foreign Consuls to his aid, and these [illegible] officers have since contracted, he complied with the demands of his masters. The telegram goes on to tell us that Cherif Pacha has been appointed President of the Council of Ministers—a post which the Khedive has lately been credited with the desire of keeping in his own hands. It is generally understood that Cherif is the Osman Pacha of Egypt, a bigoted, ignorant, and obstinate fanatic. But whether that be so or not is, as matters now stand, of comparatively little importance. It has for some time been seen that the Khedive would have to be supported against his own Army : and the news we give to-day can only be followed by the intelligence of a joint occupation of Egypt by England and France. The attempt to put pressure on the troops by moving the Sultan to interfere was a hazardous one. But it might have succeeded had there been time. Now that the Egyptian Army has completely broken away from its prince, the experiment of sending troops to overawe, it who are just as likely as not to fraternise with it, will have, we should think, to be abandoned.

We may be sure that the joint occupation, which is inevitable if the enormous interests which Egypt represents are not to be abandoned to 4,000 savage mercenaries, is a task to which both France and England will address themselves with reluctant feet. France has her hands full, and more than full. And activity on her part in Egypt will have the disastrous effect of lending a thoroughness and extent to the Arab opposition to her plans in North Africa which is at present wanting. England on the other hand has always had a well-grounded fear of the issues to which a joint occupation of the kind which she can hardly now escape in Egypt may lead : and there are circumstances in the present case which add a double degree of danger to the prospect. English opinion has not for many years been so unanimous about anything as it has been unanimous in disapproval of the French proceedings in Tunis, and that unanimity of condemnation has of course its counterpart of resentment in French sentiment. The auspices are far from promising under which the two nations of the West are peremptorily called upon to interfere in Egypt.

THE interview between the Emperors of Austria and Germany at Gastein was one of those events which, though by no means infrequent in these days of Royal and Imperial intercourse, naturally attracted general attention and formed the theme of European comment. In presence of the rumours and the combinations of opinion, which now imagine that France is coquetting with Russia, and now surmise that Italy is bent upon avenging the slight to her interests in Tunis by sudden proffers of amity to any Power likely to oppose the policy of France, the friendship and alliance of Germany and Austria would seem to be almost the only stable feature of the Continental situation. Who would have dared to foretell on the morrow of Sadowa that Hapsburg and Hohenzollern would so soon have recognised that they were bound by a hundred interests to be the closest allies of one another ? Yet it was in the necessary development of events, and it only required the menacing tentatives of co-operation with France, which the dotage of the aged Gortchakoff so imprudently revealed to the world a few years ago, in order to cause the long-severed rivals to spring together in a friendly embrace which is the firmest gage of peace to Central Europe. The famous "Triple Alliance," the Drei-Kaiser-Bund, was only an expedient contrived by the subtle genius of Bismarck to tide over the trying period which followed the foundation of the new Empire. It was not intended to last, and it could not last. The only real check upon the anti-German bent of Russian ambition consisted in the friendship of the late Tsar for his Prussian relatives ; and as a terrible catastrophe was to prove, the life of Alexander the Second hung upon a thread. There is nothing scarcely in the whole history of Prince Bismarck's astonishing career which is recognised by his countrymen to constitute a more binding and imperative claim upon their gratitude and admiration than the statesmanlike promptitude of that famous journey to Vienna, when, with the wise candour which is his special characteristic among diplomatists, Prince Bismarck boldly sought out Count Andrassy and Baron Haymerle, and in a manly and outspoken appeal established the good understanding between Austria and Germany. There is a deep regard at the bottom of most German hearts for the ancient Imperial house, which not even the feeling of warm allegiance to the Hohenzollern dynasty can obliterate, and which even the haughty Prussian no longer conceals. The expulsion of the "brother-Germans" of Austria from the fatherland in 1866, though it was the inevitable outcome of the logic of events, jarred upon the kindly German patriotism ; and the common fatherland was felt to be in a sense restored, and the Austrian brother re-admitted to something like the old relations, when the reigning houses of Vienna and Berlin solemnly agreed to let by-gones be by-gones and to work together for common defence against the aggressive foreigner. In every European emergency since that day, the concord of Austria and Germany has been a dominant fact not to be ignored by any European politician, however adventurous.

To the philosophic student of contemporary history, however, the Imperial meeting at Gastein will yield in interest to the series of visits which the "Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary" paid subsequently to the minor sovereigns of Germany. Nothing else could at all so completely exemplify the immensity of the change which has come over public feeling in Germany and Austria ; nothing else could so completely demonstrate the absolute acceptance of accomplished facts by Hapsburg as well as by Hohenzollern. Let us but fancy the effect which would have been produced in every diplomatic cabinet of Europe, let us but imagine the effect which must have been produced throughout the German and Austrian Empires themselves, if even a few years ago it was announced that the Austrian Kaiser, the heir of Charles the Fifth and Maria Theresa, had undertaken an Imperial tour among the petty States and sovereigns of the South of Germany. If Franz Josef had called at Dresden it would have been interpreted to imply that the Saxon monarch and people were being reminded that Saxony and Austria stood together at Sadowa, and that the time was at hand to undo the decision of that day. As the Austrian sovereign rode within the gates of Munich, it must have been sufficient to inspire the royal representative of the Wittelsbachs with the thought that Hapsburg and Wittelsbach were friends or rivals centuries before men thought it worth while to speak of the Mark of Brandenburg. Baden and Wurtemburg would have been held to be further stages in the hatching of a plot for the recovery of the lost pre-eminence, and the re-establishment of the fallen order of things.

To-day the Emperor of Austria is able to promenade all his historic associations from Munich to Dresden and from the Danube to the Rhine. And no Prussian statesman sleeps uneasily, and no adherent of the ancient order is stirred to expectation, in consequence. There could be no more conclusive proof of the reality of the conciliation between Vienna and Berlin. The Hapsburg began, perchance, by schooling his pride to admit that what had happened had happened under a law of history. But he has come to see that, in addition, a mighty future may be spreading before the march of Austrian dominion, which the events of 1866 are calculated to assist, and not to mar. If the support of Austria is a precious guarantee to Berlin of peace upon the Niemen and Rhine, the brotherly alliance of Prusso-Germany is the pledge that Austria can shape her policy in that east to which her destiny seems to point, and that the legions of Muscovy had better pause before they force a conflict on the Teutonic friends. It may, indeed, be the case that the minor sovereigns of the German Empire are not yet so content as the Hapsburg with the ultimate results of Langensalza and Sadowa. It is said that the mysterious moodiness of the strange young King of Bavaria, his seclusion, and his gloomy dreaminess are ask unaffected by the sense that the military hand of upstart Prussia is on the [illegible] patrimony of Wittelsbach. The martial Saxons are known to resent the harsh mediatisation of their kingdom. Perhaps in other quarters also discontent is still not entirely extinct. It sometimes seemed hard to the punctiliousness of majesties and highnesses to yield even to the historic claims of easy-going Austria. To-day they must yield complete obedience to a more iron dominion. It may be readily conceived that the visit of the ex-chief of the fallen "band" to all these sulking potentates was well calculated to put them in better humour with themselves and with their Prussian suzerain. If they will but cheerfully accept their position, they may find as large a scope for their patriotism and their pride in new service to the fatherland as ever they believed they had secured under the departed system. We may be sure that nothing fell from the lips of the Austrian Kaiser to contribute to their repinings, and that in this point of view Berlin statesmen regarded the event of Franz Josef's ceremonial tour among his ancient liegemen as highly calculated to promote the tranquillisation of spirits and the oblivion of the irremediable past. There is little likelihood of the Teutonic genius and the Teutonic sword wanting opportunities in contemporary Europe. With French ambition stirring uneasily along the shores of the Mediterranean, with Panslavism enthroned with the Third Alexander,—if the Nihilists will only let him live,—with Italy wrathful, and with Turkey always "sick," the fatherland, Prussian and Austrian, may have mightier stakes than ever yet to win.

IT was reported in London on Saturday that desperate fighting was going on in Tunis, that the Europeans were flying to the shipping, and that the foreign Consuls were said to have asked the assistance of their Governments. To take the last item of this very grave intelligence first, it is gratifying to know that the various European Governments cannot have been taken unawares by the events which appear to have taken place, and may with some confidence be presumed to have taken their precautions in good time. Indeed, the last mail brought us news of an incident at Susa which shows that instructions have been issued to the commanders of neutral vessels in Tunisian harbours to interfere actively for the protection of the European residents in case of need. On the occasion referred to, the captain of Her Majesty's ship Monarch had 300 men in readiness to land if order should not be restored. The Monarch was the only man-of-war in the harbour. But there has been no lack of signs that something grave was about to happen in Tunis, and the Great Powers will have neglected an obvious duty if they have not largely reinforced their squadrons in Tunisian waters.

The disturbances throughout Tunis could probably not have been arrested by any policy on the part of the French, but that of complete withdrawal—a line they cannot be expected to adopt yet, though they may come to it. But it is important to observe that the actual outbreak of war on something like a large scale is due to a further development of the aggressive policy of the French which was carefully planned a couple of months ago. When operations were suspended after the half-military, half-diplomatic raid on the capital, they were suspended on account of the time of the year, the rapidly failing health of the troops, and, as is apparent now, the conviction that the Ministry in Paris were as likely as not to suffer at the approaching elections if the real state of things in Tunis were set too nakedly before the eyes of the voters. The mot d'ordre was accordingly issued that for the moment the Tunisian affairs should be regarded as a fait accompli. France was invited to admire the skill of her diplomatists and the energy of her generals ; and in the hope that deeds might inspire confidence, and refusal to words, the French Government went through the ridiculous farce of sending part of their troops home. In the actual state of affairs in Tunis itself there was as little reason for the cessation as there ever had been for the commencement of hostilities. The French, who landed under the most solemn protestations that their only object was to chastise a tribe which has subsequently appeared from history, had, it was true, made a stolen march on the capital and forced the Bey to sign a treaty with them. But no serious attempt had been made to subdue the country. And the Arab of Tunis is as far as the Afghan of Kabul was from comprehending the duties of the inhabitants of a country to a sovereign who has signed them over, on paper, to the enemy. The French are—for them—invaders of their country who have not even as yet the right of possession.

This is a situation in which the "insugent" of modern international politics is rapidly developed ; and the French no sooner showed signs of withdrawal than the insurgents sprung up in great force. And the French are now actively engaged in putting down a "rebellion" carried on by the infatuated Tunisians against their "liege lord." We have not yet heard whether the French are to officiate as the executioners of their friend, the Bey. But that will doubtless come in good time.

The objective point of the present French expedition is Kairouan. The Governor of that place declared for the Bey and the French ; and was probably not very much surprised when the insurgents promptly deposed him, and took possession of the Hotel de Ville of Kairouan. This incident took place in the beginning of August, when, for reasons, as we have seen, of their own, the French were fain to wink at rebellion even of that outspoken kind. But it was then resolved that a movement should be made early in September, and that four columns should march on the devoted Kairouan from Hamamaalif, Beja, Susa, and Kef. That plan would appear to have been adhered to ; but to-day's telegram is not the first that has revealed the extent of the obstacles which will have to be surmounted before the Governor of Kairouan and the Bey of Tunis are avenged on the rebels who have repudiated their authority. The array of invasion [illegible] one regiment [illegible] the horse and artillery [illegible] to the Bulgarians and Circassians of childhood. The appearance of the girls proved how much care and attention are bestowed on them by the Sisters, who have left their native land and their homes, not for pay and pension, but simply to do good. CHOLERA AT ADEN.

On Friday the following telegram was received in Bombay by Messrs. Finlay, Muir and Co., from Messrs. Beyts, Suez:—"On account of cholera, seven days' quarantine imposed on arrivals from Aden; and on Saturday a message was received from the Aden Coal Company as follows:—"Steamers coaling outside; free pratique at Suez."

We believe a rifle match between a team of ten men belonging to the Bombay Volunteers and an equal number of the G. I. P. Railway Volunteers has been arranged to be shot off at Poona on the 20th instant, before the commencement of the Central Presidency Rifle Meeting. The distances will be 200, 600, and 800 yards, the most difficult distances on the regulation range. Last year, it will be remembered, the Railway men beat the Bombay Volunteers. We think they will have their work cut out for them to get the best of the present contest. It ought to be a very good and close match. There may be some difficulty in getting together a thoroughly representative team of the B. V. R. We hope every member selected will make an effort to attend.

A TELEGRAM from Simla, 8th Sept., to the Allahabad paper states:—"By the latest information, the Amir was to move out of Kelat-i-Ghilzai on the 4th, which should have provided for a final struggle in a short time, unless Ayoub has concluded to turn tail. All this while it is supposed that he and the Amir have been negotiating—endeavouring, that is to say, to seduce each other's friends. Of course it is impossible to tell what success either may have had, until the result appears."

A TELEGRAM from Simla, September 6, to the Civil and Military Gazette, states:—The Nana Khel jirga arrived at Dera Ismail Khan, bringing Mashak as promised, yesterday. The settlement is progressing favourably.

THE latest news from Nepal is that the weather continued sultry, the prospects of the crops were good, and the Indian-corn was almost all harvested.

IN the early part of June last medical officers and veterinary surgeons serving in the Bengal Presidency, who had completed their tour of foreign service, were called upon to state whether they were desirous of prolonging their service for another year in India, or wished to return to England in the ensuing trooping season. It is said that thirty-five medical officers and eight veterinary surgeons expressed themselves as desirous of being relieved on the expiration of their tour of service.

A return has been submitted by the Surgeon-General of H. M.'s forces showing the sickness, mortality, and invaliding in the British troops serving in the Madras Presidency in 1880. The average strength of British troops last year was 10,280 against 10,507 in 1879. The total of admissions was 14,084, and the deaths in hospital and out of hospital amounted to 100 against 173 in the previous year. The total of men invalided was 238 against 467 in 1879. The figures for the year 1880 are very favourable when compared with 1879, and the comparatively small number of deaths from "all causes" shows that the health of the troops in the Presidency was exceptionally good.

At the Calcutta criminal sessions, on September 6 Mr. Justice Field sentenced one Makhum Chunder Banerjee to death for the murder of his female cousin—apparently without any motive. His Lordship, in passing sentence on the prisoner said:—"Makhum Chunder Banerjee—You have been found guilty of murder, a murder which was most brutal and most barbarous—the murder of a female relative whom you were bound to protect, rather than treat in the barbarous manner in which it has been found that you have treated her. I hope the fate which has overtaken you will be a warning to the young men of your race and nation, who learn the vices of civilization with greater aptitude than they seek to practice its virtues, or subject their minds to its humanizing influences."

THE Lahore paper remarks that after every campaign we lament the cheapening of military honours, the showers of decorations, the brevets, the medals, and clasps which reward our petty wars. Our newspapers justly sneer at the lack of all sense of proportion which writes Ali Musjid, on regimental colours, by the side of Alburca, which gives the K. C. B. alike for the Commanders of Brigades in the Lushai expedition and in that of the Crimea, and bestows medals equally for campaigns such as that of the Sutlej and that of Bhootan. As to the V. C., that is now given to a man even for defending his own life like a cat, in a corner. Recommendations naturally tend to increase, for "V. C." wearer who has his private deserts whether he has done anything to deserve it feels himself bound to recommend all whom he sees behave as well as he did himself on the occasion when he obtained the decoration. The standard is thus constantly lowered. Self-sacrificing heroism is no longer the sole title, as was evidently intended, to have some hand in establishing the order, and honours are compelled to such a pass, that the carefully sift the shoals of recommendations, and went in on account of the late war. But this is as nothing, for bringing Victoria Cross into contempt, compared with the yearly batches of major-generals.

MR. CLAUDE VINCENT, Under-Secretary to the Madras Government, in the Public Works Department, has written a pamphlet on the subject of steam tramways for India. In his introductory chapter he lays stress on the importance of means of ready transport in times of famine; pointing out how the want of this increased the miseries and expenditure during the years 1876 and 1877 in Bombay and Madras. He alludes to the remedial measures proposed to alleviate suffering from such visitations, briefly classified under the headings of extensive irrigation works, and means of developing the system of inland communications. He dismisses the former by showing that, in a dry year, or after a succession of dry years, "even the largest irrigation systems produce a reduced supply, and moreover the area protected by them can, at the best, bear but a ridiculously small proportion to the total area affected by an extensive famine." He remarks that only great rivers render a supply of water during these times, and that these are not very numerous in India. Moreover, even though food grain may be stored in favoured regions in good years, and though it may be also produced in excess of the local demand in bad years, yet it is quite one thing to have the grain at the place of production, and quite another to get it, in the middle of a crisis, to outlying famine-stricken localities." As even the most inexpensive of railways cannot be constructed for much less than £6,000 to £7,000 per mile, he proposes steam tramways, or railway feeders, which would branch off like a [illegible] concerning places hitherto dependent for communication on indifferent [illegible] Custom is so strong among the lower classes in all countries, that they will seldom go much out of their [illegible] but must be brought to their thresholds.

THE Madras Times hears on very good authority that the Madras Government have taken steps for reviving the post of Director of Revenue Settlement, abolished during Mr. W. Wilson's tenure of office. The reasons advanced appear to be that the abolition of the appointment was dictated solely by financial exigencies, and that while the survey and field settlement of many of the Directors had been completed, there were still some in progress, and others yet to be taken in hand; and there was, besides, the completion of the accounts of the great irrigation system. These and other matters required the sole attention of a special officer; and the Madras Government are desirous that Mr. Wilson should, from his past experience, be re-appointed on his former salary,—and our contemporary believes they have asked the Government of India to sanction the revival of the appointment in anticipation of the approval of the Secretary of State. Meanwhile the Madras Government have deputed Mr. Wilson to proceed to the Godavari on special duty in connection with the irrigation accounts of that system.

Life says it was expected that when Her Majesty visited Edinburgh on the occasion of the Volunteer Review, she would confer the honour of knighthood on the Provost, Mr. Thomas Boyd, chief partner in the well-known publishing firm of Oliver and Boyd. For the same honour the name was also mentioned of Mr. George Harrison, "treasurer of the city of Edinburgh, and on the whole its most notable and public-spirited citizen at the present time."

M. BOMBONNEL, of Dijon, whose prospectus of an "Algerian Lion and Panther Hunting Preserve" is published in the (London) Daily News, is evidently a man who is fully alive to the wants of his age. He has leased a large forest district, on a table-land of which he undertakes to keep up a constant supply of "old and broken-down animals; such as goats, horses, mules, and asses, which will serve as baits." The lions and panthers will naturally take up their abode in the ravines and densely wooded tracts in the neighbourhood of such attractive viands, and subscribers are to have the opportunity of shooting them when in quest of the "baits." For learners, and ladies, who are subscribing in considerable numbers, sheltered ambuscades will be provided, with open ones for "stirdy spotsmen, for whom the claws of lions and panthers have no terrors." In addition to these attractions, M. Bombonnel guarantees that "sportsmen and sportswomen shall always be within gunshot of hyenas, jackals, lynxes, and tiger cats," and in all respects have a comfortable home, with "a good chêf and [illegible] cellar." The terms for board at this delightful [illegible] per annum during five years, payable in advance.

DISTURBANCE IN A SYNAGOGUE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—Please permit me to contradict the news that appeared in your yesterday's issue concerning a disturbance in a Synagogue. The congregation of the Samajee Hasajee-street Synagogue has been lately divided into two factions—one supporting a resolution of depositing the funds in the Government Savings Bank for safe custody, and another opposing that wholesome measure. There was a circumcision agreement at the house of one of the members of the former faction, and according to the usual Jewish rules, people gathered in the Synagogue on Friday evening to place the chair in commemoration of the Prophet Elijah. The members of the [illegible] discussion demanded the fee, as the key of [illegible] was in their possession. [illegible] of the treasurer, but some fifty private persons opposed the peaceful termination, and used criminal force against the person of the host, and also used abusive and threatening language with intent to provoke a criminal breach of the peace; and thus there was a disturbance, which subsided partly owing to the quiet disposition of the host, and partly because of the presence of the police inspector, Mr. Jones. There was no such thing as excommunication, and I am sorry your informant misinformed you.

THE ALLEGATIONS OF FRAUD AGAINST THE ACBAR MILL DIRECTORS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—Mr. Ahmedbhoy Hubibbhoy has brought to our notice the report of a certain plaint filed by Dinshaw Framjee Wadia and others against the directors of the Acbar Manufacturing Company, and a paragraph with reference thereto, published by you in your issue of Thursday last.

The above publications indirectly insinuate that our client, Mr. Ahmedbhoy, sold for Rs. 19,349 the remainder of the machinery purchased by him and Mr. Rahimbhoy from the Hydraulic Press Company for Rs. 14,000, to the directors of the Acbar Manufacturing Company, and those insinuations are false. The value of the said machinery, of the Hydraulic Press Company was not of the value of Rs. 14,000, but was of the value of Rs. 20,000 or thereabouts; and our client, Mr. Ahmedbhoy Hubibbhoy, has not sold his share of the said machinery, or any portion thereof, to the directors of the said Acbar Manufacturing Company; nor has he any concern whatever in the sale made to the said company, and he is not, and never was, a director thereof, and has never held any office or other fiduciary position therein.

We have therefore to request you to publish this letter in your issue of Monday for the information of your readers.—Yours, &c.,

JEFFERSON, BHAISHANKER, & DINSHA.

ATTRACTIONS OF BOMBAY AS A MILITARY STATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—It was quite unnecessary to travel as far as Belgaum for an illustration of how much better they order some matters in Bengal. Everyone in India knows Colaba, and while blessing the flash which announced the end of a tedious voyage, has possibly envied the inhabitants of the sea-girt promontory. His experience of the attractions of the spot, if he happens to be sent there, will hardly [illegible] Knowing the sea surrounds him, he attempts to reach the shore. A mangrove swamp first warns him to move a little further on. He arrives at a little open strip of shore, which would be accessible, had it not been appropriated to the Colaba incenses; but, of course, linen must be washed, so he passes on. A formidable-looking stone wall, checks his progress; he recollects having heard of a Colaba Lunatic Asylum, so with a sigh for the inmates he still moves on. Another enclosure; apparently a cemetery; beyond this, surely, some means of access to the beach will be found! He is not mistaken; a narrow pathway, frequented much by cattle, leads him to the sea. But he soon finds that he has gained little; he must climb the way he came, or stumble along over the rocks. He chooses the rocks, passing one enclosure sacred to the Meteorological Department, and another devoted to the recreation of Thomas Atkins, Esq. Attaching himself to a communicative individual of the latter persuasion, he inquires the way to the nearest bunder, and is led past hospitals, through a native village, and past coalsheds, to a narrow jetty, which his guide proudly indicates as the Pilot Bunder. Here, meditating many things, he takes a boat, and, leaving Colaba and its fascinations behind him, makes sadly for the Apollo Bander.

One more growl, if you won't be angry, and I have done. Your "Qui-hye" drives along the Queen's road, and after admiring the succession of imposing buildings extending from the Sailors' Home to the Telegraph Office, comes to a row of structures, occupying a most "eligible" site, which he supposes to be cattle-sheds. He is again mistaken; they are the quarters of the officers of the Marine Battalion." C.

MDLLE. EMILIE DORE'S CONCERT.

LOVERS of high-class music were offered an opportunity at the Town Hall on Saturday, by Mdlle. Doré and her accomplished sisters, of gratifying their taste. The programme was a well-selected one, and it was natural to expect that the ladies would have met with an encouraging reception on this their first appearance before an Indian public. But owing probably to the fact that a large portion of Bombay society is now at Poona, only a very scanty house greeted them. What it lacked in numbers, however, it made up in the warmth of its approval. A more appreciative audience could not have been wished by the most exacting artiste; and it is certain that the little company has given substantial proof of its ability to entertain us. The ladies must have found it hard work to give a performance almost without aid, but the spectator saw no trace of fatigue, and there was not a single hitch to complain of. One circumstance alone marred the general effect, and for this the public are entirely responsible. The large hall in which the concert was given was so insufficiently filled that now and again the singer's voice raised unexpected echoes that refused to be stilled. But the defect is one which should be remedied at the next concert. Mdlles. Emilie and Leopoldine have both fine voices. The former is a contralto of great power, and has a voice of such flexibility that she is enabled to execute the most difficult passages without blurring over a note. The younger lady's voice (soprano) is perhaps of not such good quality, or so powerful; but she is a good actress, and the charming sprightliness with which she renderes airy trifles like Suppé's "March de Boccaccio" won for her the applause of the audience. She received a well-deserved encore for her execution of this song, and the house was not satisfied until she returned and repeated a portion of it. Mdlle. Emilie sang "Il Pescatore de Corali" of Tosti with great effect; her articulation is peculiarly distinct, and the notes of the pretty air came as clear as those of a bell. Mdlle. Leopoldine made a hit with "Carnevale à Rome;" the applause that rewarded her efforts was spontaneous and hearty. In the graver music of "Der Wanderer" and "Quite Alone," the full rich voice of Mdlle. Emilie was shown to advantage, furnishing a pleasant contrast to the somewhat eccentric, if pretty, airs that preceded these pieces. The two duets comprised in the programme gave the sisters an opportunity of blending their voices in sweet harmony. It would be [illegible] mention of Mdlle. Marie Doré in the [illegible] ainment, was not unimportant. The [illegible] piano at which she presided responded [illegible] touch like a sentient being, and her sisters could have had no more capable accompanist to their songs. Two young gentlemen amateurs relieved the tedium of the waits between intervals with some well-played music.

FOURTH CRIMINAL SESSIONS.

FIRST DAY, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 10.

(Before the Hon'ble Sir CHARLES SARGENT.)

ALLEGED KIDNAPPING.

BULDEO PITAMBER, a Brahmin, aged 30, stood charged with having kidnapped one Nanee, girl, from the lawful guardianship of her brother Bhoorsingh Ravotsingh. Mr. Russell prosecuted, and Mr. Rivett-Carnac defended the prisoner.

Mr. Russell stated the facts of the case. It appears that the prosecutor, Goorsing, with his two sisters Goolab, and, twelve years old, Nanee, a minor, twelve years of age, and a woman named Motee, who acted as cook, came down from Jodhpur to Bombay, on their way to the holy city of Dwarka, in the month of February last. At Gwalior one Radhakisen Ghirdhar, a Gujar, joined the party of pilgrims, and carried his livelihood on the way by his trade. At Bombay the party put up at Goolalwady. Shortly after their arrival Motee left service, and set up a shop in Bhendy Bazaar. After about a fortnight Nanee, quitting one morning, and those of her sister Goolab, went to a mundeer (temple) for worship; but she did not return. Radhakisen and Goolab went about the streets of Bombay in search of her, from day to day; but without success. Radhakisen did not report the matter to the police, because he said that, as a stranger, he did not know the ways of this place, and that, according to the custom of his country, one must a first go about in search of the missing property or person, before applying to the police. The prosecutor on Goorsing girl also did nothing, as he was laid up with guinea-worm for about three months: after which, on the advice of a bunia neighbour, he informed the police. On a search being instituted, Nanee was found in an outhouse situated in the garden compound of Sir Mungaldas's residence. The outhouse belonged to the prisoner Buldeo, a man in the employment of Sir Mungaldas. Here Nanee was taken by Motee, was made to sit on a stool, and the betrothal ceremony was performed. About a week after the end of her saree was tied to the dhotur of the accused, a Brahmin unnticed by any one, walked round the fire seven times; thus formally performing a marriage ceremony. Nanee all along protested against her treatment, and said "she would rather grind corn and fetch water," a Rajput girl as she was, than be the wife of the prisoner. She also repeatedly asked Motee to take her back to her home, but was put off from day to day. She could not escape, as a watchman "p—a red turban and black coat, doing duty at the garden gate, would not allow her. When even she expressed her dissatisfied with her situation, the accused threatened to beat her, and said she should no more think of her home, and of her brother and sister. He also cohabited with her against her will. Nanee, when found, was returned by the police to her lawful guardian, and Buldeo and Motee were arrested, but Motee somehow managed to escape.

After about five witnesses for the prosecution had been examined, the case was adjourned for further hearing until Monday (to-day).

A DOCTOR'S CLAIM.

HORMUSJEE DOSABHAI PESIKAKA VS. PURSHOTUM GOVINJI.

THIS was an action by the plaintiff, a doctor and surgeon-oculist, to recover the sum of Rs. 100, charged as fee in respect of a successful operation of extracting a cataract from the eye of the defendant's wife. Mr. Rustomjee appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Baburao conducted the defence.

The defence set up was that there was no contract entered into, and that the plaintiff had published and circulated handbills wherein he not only offered gratuitous medical advice and medicine from 2 to 4 p.m. daily at his place, but made special mention of the fact of his removing cataracts free of charge. In the present case he had performed the operation at the defendant's house, but he was paid his usual fee of two rupees for an attendance.

The court was of opinion that the performance of the operation at the defendant's house totally changed the aspect of the case. The handbill stated that cataracts were to be removed at Mr. Pesikaka's dispensary, and after admitting the succession of imposing buildings extending from the Sailors' Home to the Telegraph Office, comes to a row of structures, occupying a most "eligible" site, which he supposes to be cattle-sheds. He is again mistaken; they are the quarters of the officers of the Marine Battalion."

HIGH COURT.—SEPTEMBER 7.

(Before the Hon. Mr. Justice BAYLEY in Chambers.)

A SUIT AGAINST THE NEW DHURUMSEY MILLS.

NAGOO SAVAJEE AND CO., VS. THE NEW DHURUMSEY SPINNING AND WEAVING MILLS.

THE plaintiffs, a well-known firm of contractors in Bombay, have filed a suit against the defendants for an account to be taken of what is due to them for work done under a contract dated 30th July, 1879, and for payment of the balance found due to them on the taking of such account. They also claim Rs. 500 for work done and Rs. 2,000, the amount deposited by them with the defendants, under the terms of the contract, as security for the due performance thereof, with interest on the two sums from the date of the filing of the plaint; and also Rs. 3,047 as damages for wrongful conversion and detention of the plaintiffs [illegible] goods.

[illegible] under which the claim arises are stated in the plaint to be [illegible] the defendants invited tenders for the construction of certain works on their mill premises at Coorla, namely, the construction of a new chimney, a chamber for the economisers, and a flue in prolongation of the the nexisting flue. The plaintiffs' tender was accepted, and an agreement was prepared. It was then further agreed that the plaintiffs should also pull down the old chimney for a lump sum of Rs. 500. The agreement was executed on the 30th July, 1879; by which the plaintiffs were to maintain the works till the end of the month of March, 1881, as security for due performance of the works, they deposited with the defendants Rs. 2,000, which was to be returned after the lapse of the period stipulated for. The plaintiffs completed the works according to the agreement except a small portion of the flue, which they would have completed if they had not been hindered by the agent of the defendants. The plaintiffs had been refused payment for the work they had done; and the defendants claimed a lien on the deposit of Rs. 2,000 in respect of damages alleged to be caused by the plaintiffs. They proceeded to pull down the old chimney under the directions of a foreman in the employ of the defendants; and as more than half of the chimney had been pulled down, the remaining portion fell down. The plaintiffs said that the fall was in no way attributable to any want of care on their part, but was solely due to the ruinous condition of the chimney. While, however, denying any liability, the plaintiffs expressed their willingness to repair the damages and actually repaired the boiler house roofs, and would have paid for repairing the economiser house roof, but for the obstruction put in their way by the agent of the defendants. The defendants now claimed a large sum from the plaintiffs as damages alleged to be caused by the fall of the chimney, and refused to retain the moneys or allow the plaintiffs claimed to contract. The plaintiffs submitted that the [illegible] the contracted for having been completed, and the period during which they were to be maintained having elapsed, they were entitled to receive from the defendants the balance of moneys due to them. For the purposes of the work the plaintiffs had taken to the defendants' premises at Cobrla scaffolding and other materials, tools and instruments, &c.; but the defendants refused to allow any portion of them to be removed. On the 14th June, 1881, the defendants, through their solicitors, admitted having used some of the plaintiffs' materials, stating that the rest might be removed. The plaintiffs filed, however, been obliged meanwhile to procure new materials, and in various ways suffered loss by the wrongful detention by the defendants; and they therefore claimed in the aggregate a sum of Rs. 3,047 in respect of the materials which the defendants had wrongfully detained. His Lordship has accepted the plaint as a long cause.

TESTIMONIALS.
RHEUMATISM, &c.—"HENRY'S THILUM" has been used in my own family, and its use recommended by me to others. As an emollient, anodyne and detergent application, it is no of SURPASSING VIRTUE. In Rheumatic affections its efficacy, when well rubbed in, cannot be questioned, while its fragrance effectually meets one of the greatest objections to unguents in general.

RINGWORM.—For the last twelve months I had been suffering from Ringworm about my neck, which did not yield to any of the various remedies I used. Having got a box of "HENRY'S THILUM" from you, I made no hesitation in trying it. Six or seven applications of the ointment in two days completely stopped the disease, and I am much delighted to communicate to you this result of my trial of your "THILUM" with a view to your recommending it as a SPECIFIC FOR RINGWORM.

HEMICRANIA AND SCORPION STINGS.—I have used "THILUM" for a pain which I was subject to on one side of my head and face, and it gave me IMMEDIATE relief. I have also applied "THILUM" for Scorpion Stings, and find that it takes much effect and gives IMMEDIATE relief.
